

INTER-VIEWZ

Connecting through Conversation

In this crazy “coronavirus economy” of masks, social distancing, business closures, work-at-home mandates, travel and social gathering restrictions, how do you tell your story and showcase your organization, cause, products or services to prospects, customers, targeted people groups or the public at large?

In this complex, “hyper-diverse” culture, how do you build bridges of communication, mutual understanding and constructive relationships with people who may not understand or share your point of view, or have different perspectives on topics that are important to you?

There’s nothing like a good interview to tell your story and build new bridges.

Drew Crandall is a well-known and respected business owner, community leader, journalist and public speaker. His first experience interviewing guests on television began in 1996, when he was invited to be a host of A Show of Faith, a weekly 30-minute Sunday morning talk show on WFSB-TV 3, Connecticut’s CBS network affiliate. That gig ended in 2000, when the station converted to 7-day-a-week morning newscasts.

Drew also served as co-creator, writer and host of Tolland County Economy, a 30-minute talk show on the Community Voice Channel. The show aired on Comcast and online from 2005-2017. During this 12-year span, Drew interviewed hundreds of leaders in business, non-profit organizations and government, receiving excellent feedback from viewers and guests on his pleasant, passionate and professional style.

If you're served lemons, make lemonade!
COVID-19 has caused all businesses to think out of the box and innovate. In recent months, our space for seminars, meetings and trade show prep has been dormant, so we've turned this space into a highly flexible, quiet, climate-controlled, green-screened digital AV / TV studio!

Let us do the work! Drew Crandall, Studio Manager/Host and John Pastorelle, Production/IT Consultant, will collaborate with you to plan the interview; prepare the questions, graphics and set; and handle the taping, post-production and formatting. If you like, we can help with broadcasting and promoting your interview on various platforms, including websites, social media and YouTube.
